The Pittsburgh Coal Men. Coal Shippers amounts to about 600,000, 000 bushels, which if valued at 10 cents, is worth $6,000,000. In order to acc modate this trade they demand that there shall either be no improvement of navigation by locks and dams, or that it shall be made of an "adjustible" character, such as may or may not be practicable. The other interests of the Ohio river call loudly for an improvement in naviamount, as some one has said, to "an annual commerce of many hundred mil-lions." The question is, shall these interests be made subservient to an interest involving only six million of dollars? As the Pittsburgh Evening Telegraph very pointedly observes, the strongest argument against the action of the Exchange is to be found in the opening sentences of the report itself.

"The central situation of the Ohio Valley, its great extent, unequalled productiveness, agricultural and mineral, with its noble system of navigable rivers, have occasioned its zapid settlement and marrivelous social and material progress. Its increase in wealth and population is without a parallel. Great cities, large manufactories, comfortable homes, and an annual commerce of many hundred millions, attest a prevailing prosperity

If the Ohio river was made navigable all the year round between Pittsburgh past along the line of their road. This and Cincinnati, there is no estimating the effect it would have upon trade in this Ohio Valley. The manufactures of Pittsburgh, Wheeling, and every other point, would be greatly cheapened to consumers, for the reason that nearly every species English Capitalists in the development of of raw material entering into them would be materially reduced in price. Boats would ply the Ohio and its tributaries the nd without breaking bulk, and the West would have the most formidable protection against railroad monopoly that the statesmanship of the country could desire.

Farmers, Don't go in Debt.—The greatest agent to produce poverty among farmers or any other class is debt. Many farmers will get a deed to a small piece of land, enough to support themselves and families, and lay by a small annual income. But that is not sufficient. They run in debt for more land, and become a slave to debt. They pay an interest on money borrowed, which will soon consume the little property they prossess. They often pay higher than ten per cent. Such proceedings engender a spirit of discontent, and they lose faith in farming and try to sell their farms in order to get to town and enter into other business. In nine cases out ot ten, every farmer who is doing well, that goes to town, fails outright. Having no faith in farming, or 'having no breadth of understanding, they buy the poorest tools and meanest stock, and drive poor teams before poorer wagons and agricultural machinery. In the fall and whiter they feed poorly, just feeding enough to get their live stock through the winter into apring. Then it takes all summer to put on the flesh that was lost in the winter by poorer shelter and bad food. They never put out fruit trees or shade trees on their farms. They always sell their best lambs and cattle to the drovers and keep the poorest at home. They send their children to school but little, as too much learning is a dangerous thing. They no not take agricultoral papers or believe in book farming. They never give their children a cent of spending money, as it makes them spendthrifts. In short, they are the most miserable people in the world, and would not keep money and will remain so to the end of their days, and most of their sors will follow the path of their sires.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON, in his new book published this week, says "if a man has not firm nerves and has keen sensibility, it is, perhaps, a wise economy to go to a shop and dress himself irreproachably. He can then diamiss all care from his mind and may easily find that performance an addition of confidence, a fortification that turns the scale in social encounters and allows him to go gaily into conversations where else he had been dry and embarrassed. I am not ignorant—I have heard with admiring submission the experience of the lady who declared "that the sense of being perfectly well dressed gives a feeling of inward tranquility which religion is powerless to bestow."

Why Wilson Bled.
[Bishop Haven, in the Independent.]

Had Wilson thrown his mighty influence on the side of the President; had he cordially supported the reconstruction measures atill needed to insure liberty and safety to our land and to the late and not yet freed slave; had he helped to pass the "force bill" and the education bill and the marriage bill, and other bills necessary to secure equal rights to all, he would have been alive to-day. But he put himself against these demands of God and the hour, and was not, for God took him.

THE story goes that once in the game of poker General Logan held three jacks — jack of hearts, jack of diamonds and jack of clubs. After running the beta to the limit and calling down the hands Logan found that his opponent had four tens, when, with true military fertility of resource, Logan furtively took out of his own pocket one of his own photographs and played it upon his unsuspecting opponent for the jack of spades, thereby holding four jacks and sweeping the board.

Good Manners.

Good Manners.

Tis a rule of manners to avoid exaggeration. A lady loses as soon as she admires too easily and too much. In man or woman the face and the person lose power when they are on the strain to express admiration. A man makes his inferiors his auperiors by heat. Why need you, who are not a gossip, talk as a gossip, and tell eagerly what the neighbors or the journals say? State your companion without apology. The attitude is the main point, assuring your companion that, come good news or come bad, you remain in good heart and good mind, which is the best news you can possibly communicate. Self-control is the rule. You have in you there a noisy, sensual savage, which you are to keep down, and turn all his strength to beauty. For example, what a sensechal and detective is laughter! It seems to require several savage, which you are to keep down, and turn all his strength to beauty. For example, what a seneschal and detective is laughter! It seems to require several generations of education to train a squeaking or a shouting habit out of man. Sometimes, when in almost all expressions the Choctaw and the slave have been worked out of him, a coarse nature still betrays itself in his contemptible squeals of joy. The great gain is, not to conquer your companion—then you learn nothing but conceit—but to find a companion who knows what you do not; to tilt with him and be overthrown, horse and foot, with utter destruction of all your logic and learning. There is a defeat that is useful. Then you can see the real and the counterfeit, and will never accept the counterfeit sgain. You will adopt the art of war that has defeated you. You will ride to battle horsed on the very logic which you found irresistible. You will accept the fertile truth, instead of the solem customary lie. When people come to see us, we foolishly prattle, lest we be inhospitable. But things said for conversation are chalk eggs. Don't say things. What you aquaintance said, "I don't care so much for what they say as I do for what makes them say it." The law of the table is beauty—a respect to the common soul of all guests. Everything is unreasonable which is private to two or three or any portion of the company. Tact never violates for a moment this law; never intrides the orders of the house, vices of the absent, or a tariff of expenses, or professional privateirs is awe say, we never "talk shop" before company. Lovers "talk shop" before company. the absent, or a tariff of expenses, or pro-fessional privacies; as we say, we never "talk shop" before company. Lovers abstain from careases, and haters insults, whilst they sit in one parlor with com-mon friends. Would we codify the laws that should reign in households, and whose daily transgression annoys and mortifies us, and degrades our household life—we must learn to adorn every day with sacrifices. Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices.—Frank Waldo Emer-son,

Affairs was that the Executive had no authority to grant such permission without the consent of Congress, and is would not be prudent to ask such consent as the sentiment of the country would not approve of it. Minister Foster stated that he was authorized to give the assurance that our government had no design of acquiring any claim to the territory, but said that the acknowledgement of the Mexican government of its inability to restrain the lawlessness of its own citizens would afford the atrongest possible argument to all advocates for the acquisition of the territory. Necretary Bristow. Louisville, December 26.—The Chicago Inter-Occan's charges and insinuations relative to Secretary Bristow, which were published at length Saturday last, were reproduced in the Courier-Journal to-day and read very generally in Louisville. As it was well known here that Bristow is not nor ever has been connected with or counsel for the Louisville whisky firms, the statements to the contrary only receive ridicule in Kentucky. It is alleged in the Inter Occan's report that when Bristow visits Lovisville he most always makes his stay at the house of Jacob Weller, his brother-in-law, and the brother of W. L. Weller, a whisky dealer and rectifier. Both Weller's deny this and say that while Bristow and his brother-in-law have always been friendly they are not at all intimate, and further, that Bristow always puts up at the Galt House and votes in the ward in which all the residents of the hotel mentioned are are required to do their voting. As far as Mr. W. L. Weller is concerned he says that Mr. Bristow has never acted as counsel for him, but at one time assisted as in duty bound, in the projecution of his firm, for an alleged technical violation of the revenue law. In reference to the whisky of J. A. Cunningham, seized at Peoria and referred to by the Inter-Occan, the facts are, the whisky was sold by Monks & Cobb of this city, to J. A. Cunningham after the senure. Mr. Bristow while here and before he became Secretary of the Tressury, as a friendly act for Monks & Cobb, wrote to the District Attorney at Chicago requesting that he defers action till all the facts were ascertained. Subsequently that whisky and part of the same lot seized with the Chicago lot were forfeited because their was no defense, the parties interested in the defense having been taken by surprise. A new trial was granted and the case is still pending. J. A. Cunningham has refused the compromise offered, because they insist the whisky was all right, After Bristow became Secretary he was applied to by Cobb to order the release FOREIGN NEWS LOUISVILLE, December 26.—The ago Inter-Ocean's charges and ins

Cobb to order the release of the whisky, but declined to give any order upon the subject, for the reason that he had been consulted by Cobb previous to becoming Secretary, unless the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and Solicitor of the Treasury should recommend the release. These are the facts as gathered from Cobb, a gentleman of the highest standing here. He also says an agent of the Government investigated the whole case and reported nothing wrong about the whisky. He says he really complained that Bristow's sensitiveness as to official propriety has prevented him from doing what the facts would have justified him in doing. Mr. Cunningham says there was no ex-Moody and Sankey.

PHILADELPHIA, December 26.— Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather the Moody and Sankey services was largely attended to-day. At the morning service Mr. Moody said it was the most encouraging meeting he had held in this country. In the afternoon the service was for the ladies. Mr. Moody preached upon Noah and his Ark. In the evenies the preached the same sermon to the men. Mr. Cunningham says there was no ex-cuse for the seizure of his whisky; that cuse for the seizure of his whisky; that ex-Commissioner Douglass was apprised of the facts concerning it and intimated that money would secure its restoration. Mr. Cunningham says he has paid nothing and does not intend to use money to secure what properly belongs to him. All the other whisky men named in the Inter-Ocean article as having employed Bristow, including Newcomb, Buchanan & Co., deny such statements. The Democrats here are indignant at the Inter-Ocean's attempt to ally them with a scheme to aid the whisky ring and Babcock. he preached the same sermon to the men These two sermons were certainly the best he has yet delivered in this city and apparently had great effect.
